1. What resources and support are available to employing bodies regarding lay employment?

The Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website provides information and downloadable templates and can be accessed via the following link: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/>

Support is also available from the District Lay Employment Team via Melanie Walsh, the District Lay Employment Contact:

Email: layemployment@ywmethodist.org.uk

Telephone: 01274 442671

(Melanie works flexibly part-time with core hours of 9:30 am to 12:30 pm on Mondays.)

2. When should an employee be issued with a Written Statement of Terms and Conditions?

An employee has the statutory right to be issued with a Written Statement of their terms and conditions of employment on or before day one of their employment. The relevant template for employing bodies to use is found in the Employment Contracts section of the Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/5-employment-contracts/>

The District Lay Employment Team is available to assist with Written Statements and a draft copy must be sent to the District Lay Employment Team via layemployment@ywmethodist.org.uk before issue to the employee so that guidance may be offered and the approval of the District Lay Employment Sub-Committee sought for any new or revised role as appropriate.

Employment terms and conditions should be regularly reviewed, ideally every year, to ensure that they remain up to date with current employment legislation.

3. What pay and conditions should a lay employee receive?

Pay and conditions for lay employees are ultimately the decision of the employing body (i.e. the Church Council for church employees or the Circuit Meeting for circuit employees).

The Employment Contracts section of the Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website includes the required format for terms and conditions to be presented to employees in line with employment law requirements: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/5-employment-contracts/>

In addition to this, Yorkshire West Methodist District has agreed a District Lay Employment Policy, available from the District Lay Employment Contact on request, which sets out its own recommended pay ranges, as well as terms and conditions of employment, for lay employees in this District.

4. Do we have to provide employees with payslips?

Employers must give all their employees and workers payslips, by law. Workers can include people on zero-hours contracts and agency workers. Agency workers get their payslips from their agency. A payslip must include the following:

- total pay before deductions ('gross amount');
- total pay after deductions ('net amount');

- amounts of any ‘variable deductions’, where the amounts depend on the amount of pay, e.g. tax, National Insurance, Student Loan repayments and pension schemes;
- breakdown of how the wages will be paid if more than one payment method is used, e.g. bank transfer and cash;
- amounts of any fixed deductions, e.g. union subscriptions.

5. Do we have to set up a payroll for our employees?

As an employer, you normally have to operate PAYE as part of your payroll. PAYE is HM Revenue and Customs’ (HMRC) system to collect Income Tax and National Insurance from employment.

Usually you do not need to register for PAYE if none of your employees are paid £123 or more a week, get expenses and benefits, have another job or get a pension. However, as all Methodist employing bodies are required to pay the Apprenticeship Levy (see question 9. below), then a payroll will need to be operated.

The Methodist Church Payroll Department can provide this service for churches and circuits. Please contact payrollbureau@methodistchurch.org.uk for more information and details of charges.

6. Can we pay our church employee through the circuit payroll?

With the agreement of the Circuit Meeting, an employee working for a church can be paid through the circuit payroll. However, the implications of doing so are that this will make them a circuit employee rather than a church employee, and the employing body will be the Circuit Meeting not the Church Council. This would represent a TUPE (Transfer of Undertakings [Protection of Employment] Regulations 2006) situation which can be extremely complex, involving responsibilities on the part of the ‘old employer’ and the ‘new employer’. Please ensure you speak to the District Lay Employment Contact if you are considering taking this course of action.

7. What is the minimum wage rate we have to pay staff?

The Living Wage Foundation (LWF) and the Methodist Conference promote the concept of the Real Living Wage. The rates are agreed upon by the Connexional Allowances Committee (CAC) on an annual basis. As long as lay employees’ salaries are based on this pay scale, any subsequent uplift to the pay scale on a yearly basis will be the decision of relevant budget holders. However, for those employees whose pay link is the Real Living Wage, the District Lay Employment Policy recommends their salary should be increased by the same percentage as the Real Living Wage increase. The Real Living Wage rates announced on 24th October 2023 are £12.00 per hour in all regions (including Scotland) and £13.15 per hour in London.

8. When do we have to increase the pay of an employee paid the Real Living Wage rate?

Lay employees paid at the Real Living Wage rate are to have their rate of pay adjusted annually in line with the rate which is usually announced each November. This increase should be applied as soon as possible and at the latest by 1st April. The District recommendation is for pay reviews to be implemented annually on 1st December.

9. Do we need to pay the Apprenticeship Levy?

The Apprenticeship Levy was introduced by the government in April 2017. All employers with a pay bill in excess of £3m pay 0.5% of their pay bill as a levy to HMRC. Further information can be found at <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/pay-apprenticeship-levy>

HMRC determined back in 2017 that all Methodist churches, circuits and districts were a “connected employer” for the purposes of the Apprenticeship Levy. This means that individual churches and circuits cannot avoid the Levy by virtue of having a pay bill of less than £3m. As we are treated as one organisation our total pay bill exceeds £3m and therefore we all have to pay the Levy. The Connexional Team took legal advice on this point back in 2017 (and a second opinion more recently) and the issue was raised in the Payroll Newsletters sent to treasurers in 2018. The legal advice has supported the determination made by HMRC that the Methodist Church is in fact a “connected employer”.

If your church or circuit employs people, you are subject to the Apprenticeship Levy. If those employees are paid through the Payroll Bureau at Church House you do not need to take any action as you have been paying the Levy since it was introduced. However, if you have local payroll arrangements in place you need to check that the Apprenticeship Levy is being paid to HMRC. If this is not the case you will need to talk to your payroll provider and make arrangements to do so. The process for payment of the Levy can be found at <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/pay-apprenticeship-levy#how-to-pay>

Any queries should be directed to the Payroll Bureau 020 7467 3530.

10. How do we choose a pension scheme provider?

Under the Pensions Act 2008, every employer in the UK must put certain employees into a workplace pension scheme and contribute towards it. This is called 'automatic enrolment'. If you employ at least one person you are an employer and you have certain legal duties. The Pensions Regulator has some more information on selecting a pension scheme:

<https://www.thepensionsregulator.gov.uk/en/employers/new-employers/im-an-employer-who-has-to-provide-a-pension/choose-a-pension-scheme>

Even if you don't have employees who need to be auto-enrolled into a pension scheme, you still have other duties which include completing a declaration of compliance. See the information on the Pensions Regulator website for more information:

<https://www.thepensionsregulator.gov.uk/en/employers/new-employers/im-an-employer-who-doesnt-have-to-provide-a-pension-now>

NEST (National Employment Savings Trust) is an auto-enrolment pension scheme set up by Government with a public service obligation to accept any employer who wishes to use it. This is in order to ensure that all employers have access to a suitable scheme to help them comply with their auto-enrolment duties. To find out more about the NEST scheme visit www.nestpensions.org.uk

11. Which employees should be offered the opportunity to join a pension scheme?

Pension provision is offered to lay employees who fall under the Resolution passed by the Methodist Conference of 1999 \(Section 2.1\) to a defined contribution Scheme determined by the employing body in accordance with the current employer pension duties and other provisions of the Pensions Act 2008.

Depending on the category the particular employee falls under The Methodist Church deems that either Option 1 or 2 apply:

- Option 1: For Eligible job holders who must be automatically enrolled into a pension scheme.

Eligible job holders are aged at least 22 but below the state pension age; and earn above *£10,000 per year.

For Eligible job holders, the employing body will make a contribution of 6% of salary, provided that the lay employee will contribute at the minimum level between 2% and 6% of their salary.

This is effective for employees appointed after 1 September 2017 - For details see: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/7-pay-and-pensions/pension-provisions-for-lay-employees/pensions-provisions-for-lay-employees/>

- Option 2: For Non-eligible job holders who can choose to opt into a pension scheme (but will not be automatically enrolled). Non-eligible job holders are aged 16 to 74 and earn over *£6,240 up to *£10,000 per year, or aged 16 to 21 or state pension age to 74, and earn above *£10,000 per year.

For Entitled workers who are entitled to join (but will not be automatically enrolled). Entitled workers are aged 16 to 74, and earn *£6,240 or less per year.

For Non-eligible or Entitled job holders, an option of a pension contribution of 6% of salary by the employing body provided a contribution between 2% and 6% is paid by the lay employee is offered as a special term of employment of lay employees under Standing Order 438A (3) (iiA) regardless of the salary level.

*Earning figures are quoted as at April 2024; it is anticipated that these figures will change with each new financial year.

12. For which employees do we have to make an employer's contribution to a pension scheme?

Please see above question. This differs depending on the particular situation.

13. In what situations should we seek guidance from the District Lay Employment Team?

Employing bodies within the District should contact us in the following lay employment situations so that we can provide guidance and support and obtain the approval of the Lay Employment Sub-committee when necessary:

- a. Creating or advertising a new post (Please liaise with the District Lay Employment Contact to ensure you have current versions of the District approved recruitment template documents);
- b. Extension of probationary periods;
- c. Advice on any aspect of existing terms and conditions of employment, pay rates, Methodist Church lay employment policies;
- d. Any changes to existing terms and conditions of employment including hours changes, extension of fixed term contracts;
- e. Church mergers if any of the merging churches has lay employees;
- f. Any termination of employment situations, including resignation, disciplinary, redundancy, ending of a fixed term contract;
- g. Any employment disputes, such as situations involving a disciplinary, grievance or employment relationship difficulty.

Employing bodies are advised to refer to the District Lay Employment Policy, available from the District Lay Employment Contact on request, for further information.

The contact details of the District Lay Employment Contact, Melanie Walsh, who is the first line of support are as follows:

Email: layemployment@ywmethodist.org.uk

Telephone: 01274 442671

14. Who should be involved in the interview process for a new post?

Recruitment panels should consist of a minimum of three people, normally including the immediate Line Manager for the role, another person who is familiar with the area of work and a third person. Further information is available via <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/4-advertising-recruitment-and-selection-for-lay-posts/step-1-planning-of-the-recruitment/appointing-the-chair-and-recruitment-panel-members/>

The Connexional procedures state that the District Chair should be notified of the meeting of the selection committee, interview panel or other body responsible for selection of Circuit and District appointments, and has the right, personally or by a representative, to attend as a member. It is recommended that the District representative be involved in all shortlisting and interview processes for Circuit roles and that this representative continue to liaise with the Line Manager throughout the probationary period. It is recommended that a Circuit representative is similarly involved in Local Church appointments.

15. What employee records do we need to keep and for how long?

The Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD) and HMRC recommend that the following employee records should be kept:

- Recruitment details, applications forms, interview notes;
- Salary information including details of pay amounts, deductions, reports / payments to HMRC; tax coding notices, taxable expenses / benefits;
- Personnel files containing correspondence with the employee including training records and formal disciplinary records / working time records;

- Terms and conditions of employment, offers, written statements, variations to employment contracts;
- Termination of employment details eg. resignation, retirement, early retirement, death in service;
- Redundancy details and calculations;
- Statutory Sick Pay records, calculations, certificates and occupational health reports;
- Right to work in the UK checks;
- Pension scheme details;
- Employment references;
- Statutory leave requests and details (e.g. parental leave, maternity leave, paternity leave etc.) and Flexible Working Requests.

Advice from the CIPD about how long employee records should be retained confirms that data protection legislation and GDPR do not contain specific minimum or maximum retention periods which apply to the personal HR data processed by organisations. Instead, these state that personal HR data should only be kept “as long as necessary for the purpose for which it was collected, and not for any longer”.

Although not mandatory, most organisations will retain data which could be relevant to a contractual claim for a period of 6 years, as this is the time limit an individual has to bring a civil claim against the organisation. 6 years is also the period often used for retention of salary data as this is the maximum period the HMRC can request documents to be provided for.

The exceptions to the 6 year retention timescale, according to the CIPD, would be: Employment References (1 year), Recruitment and Selection details (6 months - 1 year), Pension Scheme details (12 years after the benefit ceases), Flexible Working requests (18 months following any appeal.)

Data protection rules on storing data should be followed. Further information is available from <https://www.tmcg.org.uk/about/data-protection> and <https://ico.org.uk/for-organisations/data-protection-advice-for-small-organisations/>

16. Do we need to adopt our own employment policies and procedures, or can we use the general Methodist Church ones?

The Methodist Church’s lay employment template policies, available in the Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website, may be used as a basis for local employing body policies.

Please refer to <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/5-employment-contracts/downloadable-templates-written-statement-of-terms-letters-policies/>

It is strongly recommended that the policy templates are tailored to include the name of the employing body and are formally adopted by the relevant Church Council or Circuit Meeting.

In the case of Disciplinary, Grievance, Lone Working, Whistleblowing and Homeworking Policies and Procedures, please contact the District Lay Employment Contact for the District approved templates of these documents.

17. Do we need to check if an employee has the right to work in the UK?

The right to work in the UK of all prospective employees should be verified prior to employment, via provision of a UK passport or a combination of other acceptable documents. Further information is available on the Government's website at <https://www.gov.uk/check-job-applicant-right-to-work> The employing body is required to take and keep copies of original documents. Failure to comply with this requirement could lead to a civil penalty fine of £45,000 per illegal worker for a first breach and £60,000 per illegal worker for repeat breaches.

18. How do we end a fixed-term contract?

How to end a fixed-term contract depends on the reason for the termination: i.e. contract end, termination prior to end, disciplinary situation or redundancy situation. All terminations of employment by the employing body require the approval of the District Lay Employment Sub-Committee, so employing bodies should get in touch with the District Lay Employment Contact to seek further advice. In general terms:

- Where a fixed-term contract is coming to its natural end and the employee has under 2 years' service, it is good practice to meet with the employee to explore the possibility of any other alternative employment within the organisation. A termination letter including the right of appeal (available from the District Lay Employment Team) should then be sent to terminate the appointment.
- In the event that an employee on a fixed-term contract has employment service of more than 2 years with the employing body and there is no longer a requirement for the post, a redundancy consultation process will be required and Statutory Redundancy Pay will be payable as a minimum. In this situation you should contact the District Lay Employment Contact to seek assistance.

There is a section in the Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website that covers fixed-term contracts: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/5-employment-contracts/information-on-fixed-term-contracts/>

19. How do we extend a fixed-term contract?

If an employing body wishes to extend a fixed term contract, it should arrange to meet with the employee concerned to explore whether this is something that the employee is agreeable to. If it is, then the contract may be extended and a new fixed-term contract Written Statement of Terms and Conditions will need to be drafted and issued to the employee.

Please be aware that any employee with over 4 years' employment service with the same employing body is generally considered to be a permanent employee and should be issued with a permanent Written Statement of Terms and Conditions of Employment.

A template document which covers these eventualities is available in the Employment Contracts section of the Lay Employment Resource on The Methodist Church website: <https://www.methodist.org.uk/for-churches/employees-and-volunteers/lay-employment-resource/5-employment-contracts/>

All variations to employment contracts are subject to approval by the District Lay Employment Sub-Committee so please contact the District Lay Employment Contact for further information.

20. What do we do if we wish to end an appointment?

If you wish to end an appointment, contact the District Lay Employment Team for advice at the earliest opportunity. The process to follow will depend on the reason for the termination of appointment. Please be aware that any termination of employment by the employing body requires the approval of the District Lay Employment Sub-Committee.

21. Who is entitled to receive redundancy pay?

Employees are normally entitled to receive Statutory Redundancy Pay (SRP) if they have been employed for 2 years or more. SRP is payable at a rate set by the Government which changes each April and is currently capped at £700.00 per week.

Redundant employees receive:

- half a week's pay for each full year they were under 22
- one week's pay for each full year they were 22 or older, but under 41
- one and a half week's pay for each full year they were 41 or older

Length of service is capped at 20 years.

Weekly pay is the average an employee earned per week over the 12 weeks before the day they received their redundancy notice.

Redundant employees are also entitled to receive notice of termination in line with their employment contract (which may be paid in lieu or worked according to the employing body's requirements) and any outstanding holiday pay due.

Further information is available on the Government website at <https://www.gov.uk/redundancy-your-rights/redundancy-pay> and also on the ACAS website at <https://www.acas.org.uk/manage-staff-redundancies/work-out-redundancy-pay>

22. Should employees have an annual appraisal?

There is no statutory requirement for an employee to have an annual appraisal. However, regular communication with employees and feedback on performance is good practice. The Methodist Church recommends that Line Managers hold a monthly supervision with an employee and that an appraisal is held with an employee after 3 months during their probationary period; thereafter the recommendation is that an appraisal is conducted annually. A Performance and Development Review template is available on the Methodist Church website: https://www.methodist.org.uk/documents/10763/lay-employee-performance-and-development-review-0417_9BmWcfv.doc

23. How do we calculate part-time holiday entitlement (with or without Bank Holidays)?

Part-time employees' leave entitlement is pro-rata to the full-time entitlement. It is recommended that holiday entitlement for part-time employees is clarified by quoting it in 'hours per annum' in the Written Statement of Terms and Conditions.

The statutory minimum entitlement is 5.6 weeks per annum (including Bank Holidays), which equates to 28 days per annum for a full-time employee. The annual entitlement for a part-time employee is calculated by multiplying their weekly hours by 5.6.

e.g. For an employee working 15 hours a week, their holiday entitlement would be 84 hours (15 x 5.6) per annum.

However, the District Lay Employment Policy recommends that lay employees should receive 6.6 weeks per annum (including Bank Holidays), which equates to 33 days per annum for a full-time employee. In the example above, for an employee working 15 hours a week, their holiday entitlement would be 99 hours (15 x 6.6) per annum.

24. Are staff on casual contracts entitled to holiday pay?

Employees on casual worker agreements are entitled to take holiday and receive holiday pay. The statutory minimum entitlement is 5.6 weeks per annum which equates to 28 days per annum for a full-time employee. There are various ways in which this holiday pay can be calculated depending on the contractual arrangement in place so we would advise that employing bodies contact layemployment@ywmethodist.org.uk for further information.

25. Is a Medical Report required for a new employee?

It is good practice for a medical report to be obtained and reviewed by an appropriate person/organisation, so that a mechanism can be put in place for any appropriate support if necessary. The District has taken the decision to engage the services of an Occupational Health Management organisation when recruiting District lay employees. The contact details of this organisation are available on request from the District Lay Employment Contact.

26. What is the difference between Statutory Sick Pay and Occupational Sick Pay?

By law, employers must pay Statutory Sick Pay (S.S.P.) to employees and workers when they meet eligibility conditions. One of these conditions is that they earn on average at least £123 a week, before tax.

Please refer to <https://www.acas.org.uk/checking-sick-pay/statutory-sick-pay-ssp> for more information about S.S.P.

An employer cannot pay less than S.S.P when an employee is absent due to sickness, unless the employee is not eligible to receive S.S.P. If an employer pays more than S.S.P. it's known as 'company', 'contractual' or 'occupational' sick pay. The District Lay Employment Policy recommends that employees receive Occupational Sick Pay at the following rates:

- | | | |
|------|-------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|
| i. | After 6 months up to a year: | 1 month's full pay |
| ii. | 1 year to 2 years' service: | 2 months' full pay + 2 months' half pay |
| iii. | 2 years to 10 years' service: | 4 months' full pay + 4 months' half pay |
| iv. | After 10 years' service: | 6 months' full pay + 6 months' half pay |

The period should be considered in terms of a rolling year. Extensions of sick pay are made at the employer's discretion.

27. What should we do if a prospective employee is on benefits?

An employee who is in receipt of state benefits should be treated no differently to any other employee by an employing body. The District Lay Employment Team is not aware of any particular actions which an employing body should take in this event.

28. What do we have to do if we wish to employ an asylum seeker?

Asylum seekers do not normally have the right to work in the UK. However, an asylum seeker can apply for permission to work in the UK if the Home Office has not made a decision on their initial asylum claim within 12 months. In contrast, refugees (i.e. those who have received a positive decision on their asylum claim) have full employment rights in the UK and therefore may be employed.

29. Do we need to take out employers' liability insurance?

If your organisation is an employing body in that it employs people, then Employers' Liability Insurance will be required. This is a legal requirement as soon as your organisation becomes an employer. The policy must cover the employer for at least £5 million and come from an authorised insurer. Such insurance will cover the employer in the event that the employee is injured and becomes ill because of their employment. Employers can be fined £2,500 every day they are not properly insured and £1,000 if they do not display an Employers' Liability Certificate or refuse to make it available when requested by an inspector.
